Product Development Solutions

Recipes & Specifications by Hamilton Grant

With consumer trends emerging and changing faster than ever, developing and maintaining recipe data across multiple spreadsheets and researching compliance takes up time you can't afford, slowing the new product development and go-to-market processes.

From creation to final product, our intuitive, powerful solutions accelerate recipe development, and simplify cost management, compliance, labelling, nutrition and more.

It streamlines your recipe development process and eliminates the risks associated with independent spreadsheets, emails, and PDF documents all holding different pieces of information and ingredients for the same recipes. This saves time and allows you to focus on what you do best, instead of calculating and managing recipe information.

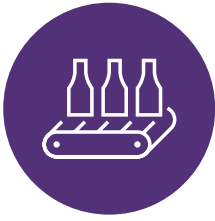

What customers say

“This shed new light on our existing recipes, allowing us to refine and improve these by standardising on a smaller number of ingredients – saving money and ensuring that we could meet competitive price points. We can now also undertake least cost formulation when developing new recipes and can compare these against current recipes to achieve commonality across ingredients and eliminate further unnecessary costs.”

Create Better, More Compliant Food & Beverages, Faster

Get more done, faster

Customised to your business, your account is loaded with all the relevant raw material, packaging, and supplier questionnaires you need, creating a dashboard that increases productivity for supplier and quality managers. With access to databanks from the USDA, McCance & Widdowson, and AUSNUT as well as any uploaded bulk ingredient information, information is easily accessed whenever and wherever it's needed.

Understand the impact of recipe changes in real-time

Whether you're creating a new recipe or modifying an existing one to comply with a change to regulations or customer requirements, as you add, delete, or modify the quantity of any ingredient your dashboard immediately reflects the change showing updated overall cost, calories, allergens nutrition and any other important data you need to track.

Make labels, easily

With the push of a button, you can create and share labels and datasheets with consumers, clients, auditors, and your market.

Prioritise growth

Spending less time entering data into multiple places, tracking it down and verifying accuracy leaves more time to focus on new products and recipes, existing customer relationships or how to reinvest the money and time saved with our solutions.
